Speaker

Dr Amad Al-Azzawi Academic Lead for Student Support (Racial Equality and Inclusion)
Senior lecturer, University of Exeter Medical School, Faculty of Health and Life Sciences, UK

Dr. Amad is an experienced and dedicated educator who is well-versed in innovative teaching pedagogies and teaching students at different levels coming from diverse backgrounds. He has over 15 years of experience as a practicing pharmacist, a university educator, and a research scholar spanning three countries: Iraq, the United Arab Emirates (UAE), and Canada. In 2006, Amad obtained his first PhD in Pharmacognosy and Phytochemistry from the University of Baghdad, then he moved to Ras Al Khaimah in the UAE and was appointed as a faculty member in the Pharmacy College at the Ras Al Khaimah Medical and Health Sciences University. He is completing a second PhD in Higher Education in Health Professions Education at the University of Toronto, where his research focuses on the role international accreditations play in clinical training practices. In his study, he views pharmacists as frontline public health professionals and is looking to link pharmacy, clinical training, and public health. The goal of his research is to support the development of robust training systems for healthcare professionals. Currently, Amad is a Senior Lecturer in the Faculty of Health and Life Sciences at the University of Exeter in the United Kingdom.
